ChildWatch: Celebrating Juneteenth

For the second year America is proudly celebrating Juneteenth. The jubilant date in 1865 when many enslaved people in Texas finally learned they were free from federal slavery, Proclamation freeing all slaves in the Confederate states. Black families have celebrated Juneteenth for generations, starting in Texas. The scholar Anne- Marie Brown has written about childhood memories of Juneteenth in her Texas hometown, describing the red soda, barbecued meat, games, and fireworks, and how the Black community celebrated the holiday.

Today is a chance for all of us to honor this history together, reflect on where we’ve come, and reflect on how far we still have to go. Let’s celebrate, and undertake journeys towards freedom together as a nation.

Today, Congressman Steny H. Hoyer (MD-05), Senators Chris Van Hollen (D-MD) and Ben Cardin (D-MD), and Congresswoman Andy Barr (R-KY) introduced a bill that the Equal Justice Initiative has been working towards for years. The bill, the Equality Act, would ban discrimination based on sexual orientation, gender identity or religion by amending the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It would protect the rights of all people to be free from discrimination in the workplace, housing, and education. It would also protect the rights of people to live freely and be who they are without fear of discrimination. The Equality Act is long overdue, and it’s time we pass it into law.

How Does Social Security Disability Work With Private Disability Insurance?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
National Social Security Advisor at the AMAC Foundation, Inc.

Dear Booy:
If someone is collecting long-term disability through their company and the company states the employee also must apply for SSDI and they will automatically get approval, Social Security Disability does not decrease the amount that the person would need to receive from the private disability carrier, just until you are at retirement age? How about for the spouse of that individual? Would there be any impact on them?

Sincerely,
RUSSELL GLOOR

Prince George’s Community College

LARGO, Md. (June 15, 2022) – Prince George’s Community College (PGCC) today announced that its Cyber Defense program has been designated as a National Center for Academic Excellence in Cyber Defense (CAE-CD) by the National Security Agency (NSA) and the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. This is the fifth time in five years that PGCC’s program has been designated as a CAE-CD.

The CAE-CD designation is reserved for college programs with robust programs that meet the NSA’s standards for cybersecurity education and training. The designation promotes a commitment to excellence in Information Assurance (IA) education and training. It also demonstrates that students are sufficiently trained to protect and defend government and business information systems against modern cyber threats.

The 2.4 million member Association of Mature American Citizens (AMAC) is a national non-profit association, which takes in the life experiences of its members. AMAC Action is a non-partisan, non-profit 501(c)(4) entity of the Association that is dedicated to supporting and educating America’s Seniors. Together we act and speak on the Association members’ behalf, promoting their interests and offering a practical insight on how to solve the problems they face.

A leader in the field, the College has been designated by the National Security Agency (NSA) and the National Security Agency for Information Assurance (NSA/SAI) as a National Center for Academic Excellence (CAE) in Information Assurance (IA). This designation recognizes the College’s commitment to excellence in Information Assurance (IA) education and training. The designation also demonstrates that students are sufficiently trained to protect and defend government and business information systems against modern cyber threats.

Nicotine to Help Treat Memory Loss?

By PRESS OFFICER

Garrison Town Memory Disorder Program

A study funded by the National Institute of Health is testing whether the nicotine present in tobacco products may help people who have mild cognitive impairment (MCI) and Alzheimer’s disease. The MIND Study—Memory Impairment Network (MCI)—will be the largest and longest running study of its kind. MIND is looking for study volunteers living in the Greater Baltimore, Maryland area who have mild cognitive impairment but no other significant health problems over the age of 55 to participate in the trial.

According to the Alzheimer’s Association, approximately 12 to 15% age 65 or older have mild cognitive loss or Alzheimer’s disease or other dementias. Currently, there is no FDA-approved medication indicated to treat this condition; however, nicotine stimulates an area in the brain known to be important for building and maintaining a useful treatment for these conditions with MCI and Alzheimer’s.

“People often think nicotine is addictive and harmful, because it is in a tobacco product, but it’s safe when used in patch form,” said Angela Ferreira, a Ph.D. student at the University of Maryland-Gonzalez University. “Nicotine is an omnipresent, naturally occurring substance that could have significant benefits for people experiencing mild memory impairment.”

The MIND Study needs people to enroll across the United States to conduct their research. Researchers are looking for healthy, middle-aged or older adults who are in the earliest stages of memory loss to participate in the MIND Study.

“The MIND Study will provide valuable information for researchers with regard to early memory loss that is not associated with normal aging and early Alzheimer’s disease, but too small to be captured in the studies we are running,” said Ferreira.

You, or a loved one, may be eligible to participate if you have been diagnosed with mild cognitive impairment (MCI) or Alzheimer’s disease and meet the following criteria:

- Supporting generational bonds between service veterans through stories of service and success
- Destigmatizing veteran experiences and veteran care
- Combating inaccurate perceptions of veterans by discussing the diverse experiences, challenges, and strengths of service members, veterans, and their families
- Connecting veterans with valuable resources.

Do You Need an Organized Exercise Regimen or Do Your Daily Chores Provide the Workout You Need?

By JOHN GRIMALDI

Association of Mature American Citizens

WASHINGTON (June 17, 2022) — When we were young and in good health it seldom, if ever, occurred to us that one day we would be too old to dance the night away. We were full of vim and vigor, and we believed we would run until we were absolutely too tired to move any longer.

So we took off our dancing shoes, put on a pair of house shoes and passed the time on a comfy couch reading a book or watching TV. But, just as we began to accustom ourselves to this new way of life, friends, family and our doctors said, “You need to get some exercise, daily chores will not cut it.”

That means we come to keep busy and we like to engage in systematic activities in our daily lives—activities that keep us on the go in ways that burn energy. So does that count as “exercise”? The consensus is that it just might.

National Academy of Sports Medicine (NASM) says, “Absolutely, keeping your house in order. While you were doing laundry, you were running or walking around, it is a work out and you’re not sitting down. Cleaning the house is an example of moderate intensity activity, the kind the NASM and health experts recommend that you perform daily to maximize health and fitness. Daily chores like cleaning your house, walking up and down stairs, cooking and shopping for food are daily activities that burn calories, improve health and fitness.”

A 2021 survey of Association of Mature American Citizens (AMAC) members by LifeBridge Health that is providing and donating quilts for this project fit in with the call of the group to “keep those small grains of love of quilting alive for our community.” Those were 2020 pandemic quilts that the group invited the organization to the Downs Park Quilters display some of the 200 quilts they made many of the veterans to share quilts to that honor salutes, at- and celebrate the most recent quilts that gift card to help the most meaningful for veterans, and their families; and supportive event to honor veterans, and their families.
